

CONNECTICUT ASSOCIATION OF HEALTH SCIENCE LIBRARIES - C A H S L

Organized in 1973 to provide a forum for education and the exchange of information among health science librarians in Connecticut, CAHSL continues to play a vital role in the delivery of health care resources.

Regularly scheduled meetings provide workshops, lectures, and approved continuing education courses.

A strong interlibrary loan network and an annual union list of periodicals provide access to a broad scope of resources at no cost to the membership.

CAHSL representatives on the New England Regional Medical Advisory Committee (NERMLAC) and its many subcommittees assures an opportunity to communicate the concerns of health science librarians at all levels and to develop programs to meet these needs.

A spirit of cooperation and concern for high level of competence is evidenced by a free exchange of expertise and assistance among members.

Membership is open to any health care or health related institution and to staff members working therein. This section contains the By-Laws, a list of executive board members, and the membership at large. Any member will be most pleased to help you.
